

Exercise walk-through

Enlightened and Other Approaches to Power ■ 4.6

eXercise

You must be able to

- state what enlightened rulers adopted from Enlightenment thought
- state what they did not adopt
- explain why reform from above had limits
- assess the sincerity question carefully

Method — What was adopted

Legal codification, religious toleration in varying degrees, educational provision, agricultural improvement and administrative rationalisation — reforms that increased state efficiency as well as serving stated principles.

Method — What was not

Consent as the basis of authority. An enlightened ruler reformed by decree; the social contract's central claim was precisely what could not be adopted without ending the regime.

Method — Limits of reform from above

Reform required noble cooperation, and reforms threatening noble privilege were reversed or unenforced. A decree without an administration to execute it changes little.

Method — Sincerity

Reforms served principle and interest at once, and the two cannot be separated from the outside. The historically defensible statement is about what was done and what it achieved, not about private motive.

Practice 2.1 ■ 2 marks

Name two reforms associated with enlightened rulers.

Solution 2.1

Worked steps

any two of: legal codification; religious toleration; educational provision; agricultural improvement; administrative rationalisation B2.

Practice 2.2 ■ 2 marks

State the Enlightenment claim these rulers could not adopt, and why.

Solution 2.2

Method: What was not

Worked steps

consent as the basis of authority B1; adopting it would have ended the regime that was doing the reforming B1.

Practice 2.3 ■ 1 mark

A reform threatening noble privilege is reversed after a decade.

- (a) State the reason.
- (b) State what this shows about reform from above.

Solution 2.3

Method: Limits of reform from above

Worked steps

(a) reform required noble cooperation, which was withheld B1. (b) that a decree without an administration willing to execute it changes little B1.

Exam-style 3.1 ■ 1 mark

Enlightened absolutism reformed

A by consent of representative bodies

B by decree

C by revolution

D by papal authority

Solution 3.1

Method: What was not

A by consent of representative bodies

B by decree

C by revolution

D by papal authority

Worked steps

B. reform came from above without consent.

Exam-style 3.2 ■ 1 mark

The claim about a ruler's private sincerity is

- A the best available evidence
- B not something the sources can settle
- C required by the CED
- D unrelated to the reforms

Solution 3.2

Method: Sincerity

- A the best available evidence
- B not something the sources can settle
- C required by the CED
- D unrelated to the reforms

Worked steps

B. motive is not recoverable from the sources.

Exam-style 3.3 ■ 1 mark

A ruler codifies the law and expands schooling.

- (a) State one way this served state interest.
- (b) Explain why serving interest does not show the principle was insincere.

Solution 3.3

Worked steps

(a) a codified law and an educated population make administration cheaper and more effective B1. (b) a reform can serve principle and interest at once B1, and the presence of interest does not establish the absence of principle B1.
