将 / 将要 / 将会 (formal future)

Read tomorrow's notice

- A school notice says 会议将在明天举行。 – the meeting will be held tomorrow. The notice places the event after today.
- It reports the announced plan. Reading it today does not show that tomorrow's meeting has already happened.

Keep the subject and future action

- Put 将 / 将要 / 将会 before the future action phrase: 学校将会公布结果。 – the school will announce the results.
- In the meeting example, 在明天 supplies the time and 举行 supplies the event. 将 does not mark 会议 as an object to move.

会议将在明天举行。
huì yì jiāng zài míng tiān jǔ xíng
Word guide: 会议 – meeting; 将 – will; 在 – at; 明天 – tomorrow; 举行 – be held.

Separate future and object uses

- 会议将在明天举行。 announces a future event. 请将门关上。
  qǐng jiāng mén guān shàng
  Word guide: 请 – please; 将 – object marker; 门 – door; 关上 – close. asks someone to close the door; 门 is the affected object.
- The same written 将 does different jobs. Read the whole action phrase, rather than translating every 将 as will.

Separate future and object uses

Notice read today
会议将在明天举行。

Revised tomorrow start: 15:00
Old start: 14:00 → one hour later

Future announcement ≠ completed event
会议已经举行了。 reports completion

Keep the stated situation and evidence together.

Re-read a changed time

- A revised fictional notice changes tomorrow's start from 14:00 to 15:00. The announced start is now one hour later.
- Use the revised time when planning your arrival. Neither the future form nor a time on the notice proves the meeting actually began then.

Choose a register, not a certainty level

- 将 is common in formal written announcements. In a chat about tomorrow, 我们明天要开会。 is an ordinary alternative.
- A formal style does not make a plan impossible to cancel. 会议已经举行了。instead reports a meeting already held.

Check event, time and evidence

- Identify the subject, the action and its stated future time. Keep a future announcement separate from a completed-event report.
- When 将 puts an object before an action, read that object use separately. Register alone does not tell you which job 将 performs.

Practise this pattern step by step.

Answers and explanations

■ 将 / 将要 / 将会 (formal future)

1101.1 将

将 / 将要 / 将会 + VP = formal future: 会议将在明天举行.

1101.2 B. news / formal announcements

将 = a formal "will"; everyday speech prefers 会 / 要.

1101.3 False.

No – same character, two senses: future 将 vs disposal 将.

1101.4 A. 将 presents the meeting as a future event in formal style.

将 presents the meeting as a future event in formal style. Compare 将门关上, where 将 introduces an object to be acted on. Word order and meaning determine which use applies.

1101.5 False.

The notice announces a future meeting; completion would need a later report or other evidence.

1101.6 60

15:00 minus 14:00 is one hour, or 60 minutes. This compares announced times; it does not prove actual completion.

1101.7 1–B: 学校将会公布结果。= Announce a future action; 2–A: 请将门关上。= Ask for an action on the door; 3–C: 会议已经举行了。= Report a meeting already held

The future, object-before-action and completed-event constructions make different claims.

1101.8 False.

Formal register does not guarantee that the future plan will be fulfilled.

1101.9 One possible response: 会议将在明天举行。

Check meaning and form:

- My response conveys a message that fits the opening situation.
- I can explain the meaning of the pattern, rather than only naming it.
- A revised fictional notice changes tomorrow's start from 14:00 to 15:00. The announced start is now one hour later.
- Use the revised time when planning your arrival. Neither the future form nor a time on the notice proves the meeting actually began then.
- I tried a second response with a name, time, place, or description changed.

This is supported productive practice. Compare meaning and structure; your answer need not copy the model. A partner or teacher must hear the spoken response to comment on pronunciation.
