■ Locate the pattern in real examples

- (in light of / given): , ; ,
- Read the whole clause before choosing a translation. The examples show the pattern in use; the context below determines what the speaker claims.

■ Follow the speaker

jiàn yú tiān qì bù hǎo huó dòng qǔ xiāo

Word guide: – in light of; – weather; – not; – good; – event; – cancel.

- In the opening situation:
- The notice gives a circumstance as the basis for a decision.

■ Check the limit of the explanation

- fits formal explanations; is often simpler in conversation.
- It does not prove the reason is sufficient, and the decision still needs to be clearly stated.

■ Repair the form before interpreting it

- The form needs repair here. Write instead; keep the word or frame in its demonstrated order.
- Form and meaning are separate checks. After the repair, explain the sentence in its situation rather than treating a familiar translation as a universal rule.

■ Keep the distinction

- The notice gives a circumstance as the basis for a decision. Check the relevant speaker, time or group in the surrounding context.
- fits formal explanations; is often simpler in conversation. It does not prove the reason is sufficient, and the decision still needs to be clearly stated.

■ Try it with help closed

A venue is closed for repairs, so the organiser postpones the event. Close the examples. Say a Mandarin response, then write it in Chinese. Explain briefly in English what the lesson's pattern adds. Compare with the model, then change one detail and try again.

One possible response:

- My response conveys a message that fits the opening situation.
- I can explain the meaning of the pattern, rather than only naming it.
- fits formal explanations; is often simpler in conversation.
- It does not prove the reason is sufficient, and the decision still needs to be clearly stated.
- I tried a second response with a name, time, place, or description changed.

Practise this pattern step by step.
